DUMMY HAMMERED BY JEALOUS MAN

Thumped Inanimate Figure in the Bed.

THOUGHT IT GOOD JOKE

Now She Wonders Who Is It, and So Does the Perplexed Husband.

NEWARK, Feb. 16 .- Failing to curb her husband's groundless jealousy, Mrs. Margaret Smith gave it free rein, with the result that as soon as it got rope enough it hanged itself. She wearled of telling the man he had no reason to doubt her devotion and concluded the only way to impress the fact on him was to play a practical joke.

So, with the knowledge of others it he family, she slipped a straw dummy into his bed, then, with her confede ater-hid behind curtains and doors to see

The fun arrived on schedule time an n a few minutes 367 Broad street, the Smith home, was more like a boile factory than a dwelling. Mrs. Smith smiled with reminiscent relish as she related the story to Judge Kuhn in the Second precinct police court this morn ing. Smith looked as if he hadn't ye seen the point.

An Artistic Dummy.

It was an artistic dummy, Mrs. Smith was hours making it. She fashioned it life-size and stuffed it with nice, clear straw. Not only that, but she clothed it in cast-off apparel of Smith's garments she was sure her husband had forgotten he ever owned. Then she rolled the lay of the rest of the bedclothing, so her lord should not be likely to notice the bulk before getting into bed,

Her plan went through. Smith was so weary that he made a bee line from his dressing gown like a convicted Senator putting off his toga and slid with a sigh between the sheets-only to find as he supposed, a stranger snuggling into his favorite side of the bed.

With a shout of rage the irate husballeaped to the floor. At that instant l wife and the rest of the family, who have wife and the rest of the family, who had lost nothing of what had occurred, broke out into that style of laughter popularly known as the "merry ha ha." Enraged at their ridicule even more than at the outrageous affront to his rights, Smith sprang to a corner of the room and seized a club which he had kept in waiting for burglars.

Without stopping to reflect that his wife was not in the bed and that perhaps she had connived in some hoax to tease him, he brought down the club upon the peacefully recumbent figure in a manner that caused it to bounce clear of the mattress and roll half over. Such a welt would have cracked in the ribs of any creature of human construction, any creature of human construction ough a veritable Sharkey.

Saw it Was a Fraud.

Suddenly realizing he had probabl committed a murder, Smith dropped his club and bent down to find out whether the suppose man was dead. It was then he saw it was a dummy. If he had been enraged before he was furious new. As to just what tool place stories differ. Anyhow, the se uel was a complaint by Mrs. Smith this morning in court. She said be this morning in court. She said her husband used her very roughly. He asserted he did not and that he always had been a good husband to her.

Mrs. Smith was a widow before she was married to her present spouse. She took to him a ready-made family of three children. That was the primary cause of the trouble. Smith did not want them in the house, and their mother insisted they should stay. He made complaints about them and she turned a deaf ear.

What galied him most was the habit of the eldest girl, who is nineteen years old, of entertaining her "steady" long after the usual breaking away time. When he remonstrated he was laughed at and told he was away behind the times. That piqued him and he gave vent to his displeasure in ways that caused disagreements galore.

BREATHING THROUGH WOUND INJURED MAN RECOVERS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.-Though stabbed in the right lung and for days practically breathing through the wound made in his breast by his assailant's knife, Louis Schwartz has surprised the physicians at the Hahnemann Hospital he will be discharged from that institution within a few days.

Schwartz was stabbed by a man whom he was attempting to eject from his saloon about three weeks ago, and it was thought he could not recover. A knife was plunged into his breast, penetrating the right lung deeply.

In such cases pneumonia rarely fails to develop according to the physicians, but to their surprise Schwartz, though suffering from another ailment, withstood the injury. For days after the stabbling the air entered his injured lung through the wound in his breast, and the wheezing noise made as he breathed could be plainly heard by those who came near him. came near him.

MEXICO BECOMING A MECCA FOR CHINESE

Entrance Easy and Labor Conditions Attract Many Celestials -- Peru Shutting Its Doors.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 16-Waa Hong, a prominent Chinese gentleman in this city, who is thoroughly in touch with affairs in China and with the com mercial transactions going on betwee that nation and foreign countries, said yesterday that the attention of China is now being turned to Mexico, and that he knew for certain that from now on the China Steamship Company would bring hundreds of Chinese monthly from the district of Canton to Mexico. One of the reasons why more Chinese will come to this country is that many Chinese, on being shut out of the United States, came here and found that they are treated much better in Mexico than in almost any other country, in addition to this they can make a living here easier than in most other countries, if certain parts of South America be excepted. One of the reasons why more Chinese

Another reason is that there is now a tendency in certain South American countries to treat the Chinese as they are now being treated in the United States. It seems almost certain that it will not be long before the Chinese will be shut out of Peru, the country in South America to which they have taken the most liking. Should this suppension it will turn to this country the great stream of Chinese which is now pouring into Peru. The theory of Dr. Thomas Dunn of the Fordham Hospital, that good results can be obtained in the treatment of pneumonia is a germ disease and that mediably subjecting the patient to a freezing temperature has evoked much comment throughout the country.
